Bishop Hartmayer has asked the priests of the Diocese to attend the National Federation of Priests Council's Convocation taking place in Atlanta this week. He believes that it will be a worthy substitute for our annual Diocesan Priest Conference. I am very much looking forward to listening to John Allen who will be one of the plenary speakers at the Convocation. No, this is not Mr. John Allen who teaches science in our junior high. This is John Allen the legendary Vatican reporter who recently was hired as an associate editor of the Boston Globe. He is one of the most respected analysts on all things Catholic in the world today. On this historic weekend when two of the 20th Century's most influential popes, St. John XXIII and St. John Paul II, will be officially canonized, I thought it would be good to share with you some of Mr. Allen's insights concerning this extraordinary event.

"Here are five things to know about the biggest Vatican happening of early 2014.

First, putting these two popes together amounts to a call for unity between the church's liberal and conservative wings. In the Catholic street, John XXIII is an icon of the left, remembered as the pope who launched the reforming Second Vatican Council and opened the Church to the modern world. John Paul II is a hero to the right, the pope who brought down Communism, who fought what he called a "culture of death" behind liberalizing currents on abortion and other life issues, and who insisted on strong Catholic identity vis-à-vis secular pressures to water down the faith.

Inevitably, those stereotypes don't do justice to complex figures. John XXIII was actually a man of deeply traditional Italian Catholic piety, and John Paul II was hardly a neo-con. Recall, for instance, his opposition to both the death penalty and the US-led war in Iraq in 2003.

Nonetheless, the politically savvy Francis is aware of how these popes are seen, so the dual halos represent an invitation for left and right to come together. Had either pontiff been canonized individually, it might have come off as a victory lap for one side or the other.

Second, the combination also says something about the multiple paths to holiness. Angelo Roncalli and Karol Wojtyla, the given names of John XXIII and John Paul II, were remarkably different personalities. Roncalli was the roly-poly, avuncular son of Italian peasants, while the swashbuckling Wojtyla was sort of a Polish John Wayne. Roncalli was a student of church history and a Vatican diplomat; while Wojtyla was a philosopher and pastor... Combining them is thus a reminder that good Catholics, up to and including popes, come in all shapes and sizes.

Third, the canonizations offer a reminder that sainthood, when it's working properly, is the most democratic procedure in the Catholic church. In theory, the sainthood process is supposed to begin with grass-roots devotion to a particular figure. In some cases that rank-and-file sentiment can be hard to discern, but not this time.

John XXIII was a global icon in his day, and he remains a beloved figure especially among Italians. A sociologist might well conclude that the Holy Trinity in Italy isn't Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, but rather God, Padre Pio, and John XXIII, because a stunning share of taxis, bars and restaurants, and private homes are festooned with images of the famed Capuchin stigmatic and Il papa buono, "Good Pope John."

For John Paul II, the vast crowds chanting "Santo subito!" meaning "sainthood now," during his funeral Mass nine years ago speak for themselves...

Fourth, there are novel twists to both canonizations. For John XXIII, it's that Pope Francis has dispensed with the normally required second miracle. With John Paul II it's the new land speed record he's setting, only nine years from death to sainthood, while other candidates can languish for centuries... Those departures from tradition illustrate a core truth about Catholicism: It's good to be pope, because Francis was free to go ahead anyway.

Fifth and finally, neither new saint is without his critics. Some traditionalists fault John XXIII for weakening the Church, noting that the progressive changes introduced by Vatican II coincided with dramatic declines in the numbers of priests and nuns and the practice of the faith in the West.

Liberals sometimes complain that John Paul II "rolled back the clock" on Vatican II's reforming spirit. Advocates for victims of clerical sex abuse often charge that John Paul II allowed the scandals to fester, in some cases supporting clerics who turned out to be guilty and failing to discipline leaders who covered it up.

Without assessing those objections, it's worth noting that whenever a pope is beatified or canonized, Vatican officials insist it's not tantamount to a declaration that every policy choice during their papacy was beyond reproach. It's rather a statement that despite their human failures, they strove to live a holy life worthy of imitation.

Pundits and activists may chew over that all they like, but the throngs who'll be in the streets of Rome today probably won't display much doubt that John XXIII and John Paul II both fit the bill."

On the Way Home for Teens: What value has St. Thomas' witness for me? Am I grateful for the faith my parents have passed on to me? What are, if any, my doubts concerning the faith? How do I meet them and still carry on?

BISHOP'S ANNUAL APPEAL - "JOIN ME IN THE HARVEST"

Thank you to those who have made their BAA pledge. As of the last report we received (4/17/14), 19.38% of our families have made a pledge to the Bishop's Annual Appeal in the amount of $192,527 (81% of our target). A quick and easy, secure way to make a one time gift or pledge from a credit card or direct debit is through the following link - <https://donate.diosav.org/> Each one of us is Christ to all we meet.

CATHOLIC HOME MISSIONS APPEAL

Many dioceses right here in the United States do not have enough priests and trained lay ministers to serve their parishes. These dioceses are known as home missions. The Catholic Home Missions Appeal will take place this weekend to support these dioceses by funding essential ministries, including seminary education and lay ministry training. Thank you for sharing your resources to strengthen the Church at home. Part of our tithe this week will be for the Catholic Home Missions Appeal.

LIGHT WEIGH ONE KING ORIENTATION MEETING

Light Weigh One King is coming to St. Joseph Catholic Church. Light Weigh One King is a 12 week Bible Study - DVD program designed to help members grow in their relationship with Jesus Christ. This results in increased strength to resist temptation. Members return to healthy eating, see improvements in their health, and often find healing in other areas of their lives, as well. The program is recommended by parish nurses and doctors for weight loss and health, and chosen by Prevention magazine as a safe and healthy faith-based diet. New research shows church-based meetings increase people's weight loss success. There are no weigh-ins. Let Our Lord and King help break you free from anything keeping you chained! A One King Orientation meeting will be held at St. Joseph Catholic Church on Tuesday, May 6 at 7:00 pm in St. Nicholas Hall. Any questions please contact Jan Losee at 706-592-5729.
